

A TRIBUTE TO THE LIFE AND LEGACY OF JOHN LEWIS

The life of John Lewis is one to be honored and remembered. He is to be remembered for his leadership in the civil rights movement and honored for his legendary service to others.

He served in Washington, D.C. for 33 years as a representative of the citizens of Georgia in the House of Representatives. But his service to Georgians benefited all of America.

John Lewis did his part to help America to be better. He advocated for equal rights, equal justice, and equal opportunities. He was instrumental in the passing and signing of the Voting Rights Act in 1965. There is nothing more sacred to our American way of life than the right to vote.

John Lewis was a man of action. The question we must all ask ourselves is “what actions can and should be taken, as an organization and individually, to make things better today, and for our children tomorrow?”

It is a tough question with no easy answers. But it is a question that should be asked.

Today we pay tribute to the life of an American legend: John Lewis. However, each of us must strive to make sure his legacy lasts forever.
